

Empowering Workplace Transformation

Revitalising Your Spaces and Your People

A New Worklife Dynamic

The global pandemic accelerated change in every industry. It simultaneously impacted the global economy, local markets and the ways people socialise and work with each other. And as millions began working from home or alternate work sites, the lines between homelife and work blurred. Consequently, business leaders grappled with these new challenges – seeking solutions that help their business grow in the current economic structure while also supporting employees in all the spaces they do work.

In this transformed world, organisations will prosper by creating physically and virtually connected experiences that enable people to thrive in a blended worklife dynamic. The workplace now exists within and beyond its traditional four walls, and must be more flexible, dynamic and scalable.

The spaces in which we work have never been more vital. Now is the time to think strategically about these workspaces and be prepared to support your people no matter what tomorrow brings. As your partner in workplace

Changing Needs and Challenges in the New Worklife Dynamic

Businesses worldwide are facing new challenges in the wake of the current social and economic environment. Your success in the new work world will depend on addressing these pressure points with thoughtful strategies and strategic partnerships.

① Revenue Restoration/Replacement & Brand Confidence

Re-establishing revenue sources impacted by the economic downturn and creating new income streams is essential to rebuilding stakeholder, consumer and employee confidence in your business.

35% of US consumers were optimistic or very optimistic about economic conditions after Covid-19, and just 10-15% in Italy, France, Spain, and the UK (McKinsey).

② Health, Safety & Environmental Well-being

Your employees are undoubtedly concerned about their health and safety at work.

expect their employers to keep them safe while at work with proper sanitation and safety measures (Harris).

The pandemic has also created a renewed focus on protecting the environment as two-thirds of citizens worldwide agreed climate change is as serious a crisis as coronavirus (Ipsos).

③ Cost Reduction & Avoidance

Reducing costs and eliminating unnecessary costs is essential for businesses grappling with decreased revenues and economic recession. Optimising costs allows your organisation to remain agile while the economy and market demands continue to be unpredictable.

④ Employee Productivity, Collaboration, Work from Home Virtualisation & Support

With employees in various locations across the globe, connecting and supporting your workforce has never been more important. The top drawback cited by employees working remotely was lack of social interaction with colleagues (Harris), so we must rise to the challenge of integrating virtual and physical workspaces to enable collaboration and productivity.

Disclaimer: Based on the results from a series of surveys conducted by Harris Interactive, including questions commissioned by Sodexo.

5 Space Optimisation & Consolidation

Your employees' physical workplace needs are changing, which means how to best use the space at your offices and work sites is also shifting.

56% of CEOs are reducing or considering reducing office space (EdenMcCallum). Therefore, strategies that reduces real estate or create adaptable, multi-use spaces can significantly decrease your operating costs.

6 Talent Attraction, Retention, Employee Engagement & Culture

As your employees are adapting to blended work environments, they are expecting more flexibility and consumer-like benefits to support their new worklife. In order to attract and retain top talent, we are challenged to find ways to keep company culture strong and maintain a healthy level of employee engagement.

In a global study, health/wellness benefits and food and beverage benefits were among the top 5 most desired benefits (Harris).

7 Digital Transformation & Enablement

Whether working from home or at a remote offshore location, your employees need reliable connections to the networks they use and to each other—which may mean restructuring or upgrading your technology stack.

In a recent Harvard Business Review Analytic Services survey, communications tools (74%), remote work tools (73%) and collaboration tools (67%) were the top-cited technologies considered “very important” for getting work done efficiently.

8 Flexibility: Agility to Manage Change

The pandemic has been a true test of adaptability, demonstrating the advantages of having agility in your business models.

98%

of executives say they plan to redesign their organisations to make them fit for tomorrow, focusing on strategies like delayering or moving toward a matrixed structure (Mercer).

People-Centered Approach

Wellbeing

When Good Eating Company (GEC), part of the Sodexo family of brands, took over catering and hospitality for one client, the company's focus on driving improved health and nutrition was central to the brief. GEC's focus on preparing fresh, seasonal food and the strength of its nutritional expertise, led by company nutritionist Rose Constantine Smith, were important factors in deciding on a new employee dining partner.

GEC does this by promoting foods that are lower in salt, sugar and fat and keeping a sustained a focus on variety, sustainability and foods that promote wellbeing.

This holistic approach to nutrition and healthy eating includes running ongoing themed campaigns promoting elements of nutrition. For example, a campaign promoting fibre, 'Ditch the Detox, brain food and eating more sustainably. These campaigns have included pop-up counters, talks and workshops.

In a recent employee survey for that client, 80% of people said they used the healthy food counter and 90% said it had improved their health.

Wellbeing Content On-Demand

Sodexo worked with a multinational company in the UK to create a virtual wellbeing world for customers to enjoy on Microsoft Yammer. They can access a massive suite of videos and content around cooking, meditation, fitness and health to take care of both their physical and mental wellbeing.

Comfort in Times of Uncertainty

In late January 2020, NHS England needed support at their Arrowe Park Hospital quarantine facility for their guests who had tested positive for Covid-19 after being safely repatriated from Wuhan, China.

Because NHS knew the 14-day quarantine would have significant effects on the mental and emotional health of the guests, they were keen to make sure every need was carefully accommodated.

Space Design & Analytics

Wx, Sodexo's workplace experience consultancy, is working with a leading FMCG company to support the wellbeing of its teams and workplace experience at its HQ as the company works through the impact of Covid-19.

The project, which went live in March 2020, was designed in three phrases – diagnostics, experience design and development of detailed briefs.

In the diagnostics stage, Wx collected data from various sources including organisation data, human data and environmental data. A virtual workshop with the company's leadership team was organised to understand their challenges and expectations, while Wx conducted interviews with employees to understand user-journeys, pain points, needs and behaviours.

Based on this data the Wx team drew up an experience design and detailed briefs for the company, covering design for sustainability and well-being, digital workplace transformation and a post Covid-19 action plan, with comprehensive analysis and recommendations on how to repurpose the workplace as the needs of the organisation evolve into the future.

Concierge Service for COVID-19 Patients

Sodexo's concierge service, Circles, was brought on board to support an NHS hospital trust's employees and support staff during the height of the Covid-19 crisis. The hospital recognised that its employees were spending longer at work and wanted to help them make the most of their downtime without needing to worry or be distracted by chores and administrative tasks. Circles helped by arranging grocery deliveries, car MOTs and repairs, and even helped plan birthday celebrations, enabling busy NHS staff to relax while they were off duty.

Integrated Facilities Management

When Sodexo took over the integrated facilities management contract for a major tech corporation, it required transitioning over 650 employees and taking over delivery services in 68 buildings across 18 countries.

As a part of the contract, Sodexo picked up delivery to three locations in Ireland with a goal of improving the employee and customer experience while realizing cost savings.

Across the project, the client was focused on setting up joint ways of working, setting a new safety focus and creating a more customer-service focused approach.

Some Examples of Services Sodexo Implemented to Tackle Those Challenges Include:

Visitor Experience: New visitor/group/event badges have reduced plastic pockets, resulting in reduction of 50% in non-biodegradable plastic waste and financial saving of €8,6K.

Sustainability: Sodexo has introduced water saving nozzles called "Water Blades."

Health and Safety

Sodexo fully integrated with the client's Health & Safety function, helping to identify any gaps in fire wardens onsite by creating "heat maps" of where they are located in the building. The same process was completed for first aiders onsite and quarterly training sessions for both fire wardens and first aiders have been established.

Sodexo's efforts delivered savings of 1.59% against the annual budget.

Water Blades have led to a 28% reduction in water consumption

Sodexo worked with a pharmaceutical client on a major project to replace all plantroom lighting. The objectives were to:

- Reduce maintenance
- Improve safety
- Reduce energy consumption

The project team removed and replaced all existing inefficient fluorescent luminaires with modern efficient LED fittings, including programmable intelligent controls.
